A Business Proposition

The question has often been asked as to what has been accomplished during the administration of President Taft. To name these accomplishments off hand is usually a difficult matter, but after a careful and painstaking review of the affairs of the present administration it can readily be seen where the president has enacted into law more substantial measures than any of his predecessors in the same length of time. During the previous administration a blare of trumpets announced the passage of a measure and the entire world was informed without delay of the work accomplished. With President Taft it has been different. He has worked quietly but effectively.

Among the many measures enacted through the recommendation of President Taft is the extension of the safety appliance act for the benefit of workmen. The establishment of the bureau of mines to safeguard the lives of miners is an act that should not be forgotten by the miners of Nevada, and Tonopah in particular, while the bringing of the workman's compensation act to a successful issue in the supreme court is another matter that concerns Nevada voters.

President Taft has made the postoffice department self sustaining and wiped out the glaring deficiency of his predecessor. He also gave recognition to the customs service, eliminating corruption and exposing and punishing customs frauds, thereby saving and recovering millions of dollars for the United States treasury. During the administrations of President Taft's predecessors the customs service was looked upon as merely an additional means for the building up of a gigantic political machine.

One of the most important measures, important to Nevada merchants and business men, that was passed during President Taft's administration, was the bringing of the railroads under federal power, whereby the government may control the rates through the interstate commerce commission. President Taft quietly transformed a deficit of $58,000,000 of the previous administration into a surplus of $30,000,000. However, no mention has been made of this accomplishment by former President Roosevelt, and such items are not likely to be included in the campaign literature of the progressive candidate.

The progressiveness of Roosevelt appears to have been a poor business policy and the radical changes as made by President Taft in building up efficient departments is termed anything but progressiveness. The conducting of the government is like the conducting of any well established business, yet, the several deficiencies as reported from the previous administration, and the surpluses that have resulted in the same instances from the present administration, show the vast differences that exists in the manner in which the details of the various departments were looked after. Roosevelt conducted the government in a slipshod manner and paid more attention to the political end of the game than to the business end. President Taft has looked after every detail of the business end and to the political end gave but scant attention until the last few months. This nation needs a man at the head of the government who will safeguard the affairs of the public and a comparison of the last two administrations will prove President Taft to have acted wisely in every matter. The grand stand campaign of the sage of Oyster Bay may look all right in print, but when it comes to the selection of a president it behooves the voters to carefully consider the records of all applicants before casting a decisive vote.

Klondike, the name of the old mining camp between Tonopah and Goldfield, is a name to conjure with. The day is not far distant when the Klondike in Esmeralda county will be equally as prominent as the Klondike of Alaska.

SCOOP THE CUB REPORTER IS NOW ON HAND

NEW CARTOON SERVICE WILL APPEAR DAILY HEREAFTER IN THE BONANZA

With this issue the Bonanza introduces "Scoop," the cub reporter, to its readers. Scoop will be a permanent feature of the Bonanza hereafter and his adventures should prove interesting for both the younger generation as well as the grown-ups. He will appear daily, unless he meets with some accident that may call for a sojourn in the hospital, but that is improbable.

It is the opinion of the Bonanza management that Scoop is the equal of the Mutt and Jeff series and will provide as much, if not more, amusement than the older cartoons.
